MIAMI – March 7, 2019 – Meland Budwick, P.A., a Miami-based law firm providing real estate and developer representation, corporate bankruptcy and reorganization, receiverships, financial fraud and Ponzi scheme litigation, as well as complex commercial litigation to a broad array of corporate, fiduciary and individual clients, today announced that partner James C. Moon has been appointed to the board of directors of the Kozyak Minority Mentoring Foundation. The organization works to achieve its primary goal of building effective pathways to diversity in the legal profession by providing opportunities and support to minority and women law students through mentoring programs, networking and fellowships.

In his role on the foundation's Board of Directors, Moon will work with fellow board members to promote awareness in the bench and bar for the need to increase diversity and inclusion in the legal profession. He will also work to recruit and assist experienced lawyers and judges in mentoring law students from diverse backgrounds attending law schools in Florida, while also collaborating with other voluntary bar associations to match mentors with minority law students attending law schools throughout the state.

"I am deeply moved to have been selected to serve on the board of an organization doing such important work," said Moon. "Diversity in the legal profession is important, because the bench and bar should be reflective of the communities they serve. This is a notion that is wholly in line with the inclusivity my firm and I strive to achieve in our work and in our daily lives. I look forward to being able to lead by example."
