Trade Secrets & Intellectual Property

Trade secrets and intellectual property disputes require a level of specialization that most litigation firms cannot offer. Meland Budwick has built one of Florida's leading practices in this area, and our attorneys are recognized accordingly. Managing Partner Eric Ostroff holds a Band 2 ranking from Chambers USA in both Litigation: General Commercial and Intellectual Property, is listed in the Lawdragon 500 Leading Global IP Lawyers, and was recognized in the inaugural WIPR USA Trade Secrets Rankings. He serves on the Sedona Conference Trade Secrets Steering Committee and teaches trade secrets law at the University of Miami School of Law.

We represent businesses and individuals on both sides of these disputes, in state and federal courts and arbitrations, across a wide range of industries including healthcare, financial services, insurance, technology, hospitality, real estate, and consumer products, among others.

What We Do

We help clients protect their most valuable confidential information before problems arise, and we act quickly when they do. Our work in this area covers trade secret misappropriation claims, noncompete and nonsolicitation enforcement and defense, emergency injunctions and temporary restraining orders, breach of fiduciary duty and unfair competition, and trademark and copyright disputes.

Trade Secrets Audit

One of the most effective things a company can do is assess its vulnerabilities before a dispute occurs. Through our Trade Secrets Audit, we help clients identify trade secrets and proprietary information, evaluate current protections and weak points, strengthen internal controls, and improve hiring, onboarding, and exit procedures. We also draft and update NDAs and restrictive covenants, including noncompete, nonsolicitation, and nondisclosure agreements.

When Litigation Is Necessary

When confidential information is threatened or misused, we move fast. Trade secrets cases often turn on what happens in the courtroom, and our attorneys have the trial experience to see them through. We have extensive experience obtaining emergency relief and litigating high-stakes matters involving former employees, competitors, and business partners. We are equally experienced on the defense side, having obtained dismissal of all claims in significant trade secrets actions brought against our clients.
