About Harrison O'Keeffe

Harrison O'Keeffe, an associate with Meland Budwick, focuses his practice on commercial litigation and also handles matters related to bankruptcy, financial frauds, and trade secrets and intellectual property.

Prior to joining the firm, Harrison served as a judicial intern for the Honorable Timothy J. Corrigan of the U.S. District Court, Middle District of Florida, and as a law clerk at a boutique appellate law firm. Harrison was also a research associate at the Brechner Center for Freedom of Information.

Harrison received his law degree from the University of Florida. While in law school, he served as an Articles Editor on the Florida Law Review and as a legal writing teaching assistant.
